The Guild of British Film and Television Editors, GBFTE, is an association of editors in the British Film and Television Industries.

The Guild's aims are to:

- Raise the profile of the skill and craft of editing
- Encourage suitable and effective training for those wishing to take up editing as a profession
- Provide a forum for the discussion of technological development and innovation within the profession
- Secure co-operation from other professional bodies in the film and television industry, both nationally and internationally

The Guild provides a means of communication between members working in all areas of the British industry.

Guild Patron: Nic Roeg
